RTX Telecom signs significant multiple-year development contract with mobile telecommunications equipment producer.

RTX Telecom A/S has signed a significant multiple-year licensing and development contract with a producer of telecommunications equipment. The project involves the development of a Wireless Local Loop (WLL) terminal for use as part of a mobile telephone system.

Wireless Local Loops are radio-based networks that provide access to normal telephone services for a greater number of subscribers within certain limited geographical areas.

The technological development work to be carried out by RTX Telecom will represent earnings of a significant amount running into a double-digit figure in MDKK. In addition, RTX expects the deal to generate significant royalty income once the development phase of the project is concluded.

The work covered by the development contract is scheduled to be concluded in spring 2002. Based on this schedule, the group expects the contract to generate earnings and income in the financial years 2001/02 and 2002/03.

RTX Telecom will announce its expectations for the financial year 2001/02 at the same time as the annual report and accounts for the financial year 2000/01 are published, in December 2001.

Kind regards
